An aerial photograph of a large-scale construction project in an urban environment. A prominent red tower crane stands on the left side of the site. The construction area is filled with concrete structures, scaffolding, and various construction materials. In the background, several tall apartment buildings and a green park area are visible under a blue sky with scattered clouds.

A detailed architectural design studio. The wall is covered with large-scale architectural drawings, including floor plans and elevations of a multi-story building, secured with blue pushpins. On the desk, there is a variety of material samples: a color calibration chart, a metal door handle, a white door frame, and several small material swatches. A black office chair is visible in the background.
